YOKOHAMA HIP SEAT CARRIER INSTRUCTION MANUAL

READ THIS FIRST

- Maximum weight: 45 lbs
- Maximum waist strap length: 41.3" (105cm)
- Minimum recommended age: 4 months
- This baby carrier is suitable for babies who already have full control of head and neck movements. Younger babies who aren't able to do that yet must be securely wrapped in an infant insert before use.

Step 1 – Wrap the hip seat straps around your waist

- Place the hip seat on your lower back to wrap the hip seat straps around the waist.
- Tighten and buckle up the waist straps.
- Rotate the hip seat to the front, so that later your baby can sit on it as per Step 2.

Step 2 – Put baby on the hip seat

- At this stage, only the hip seat section is worn securely on your body.
- The top section of the carrier (although currently attached to the hip seat) is still hanging below because you haven't put it on yet.
- Let your baby sit on the hip seat while the top section of the carrier is still hanging below (Remember to hold on to your baby with the other arm).

Step 3 – Put the top section of the carrier on

- Now, while your baby is sitting on the hip seat and you're still holding them with one arm, use your other arm to put the top section on.
- Put your arms through the arm straps, one by one and make sure to hold on to your baby with the other available arm.
- Now that the top section is up and covering your baby while both your arms are already through the holes, reach out behind your back and buckle up the back straps on your upper back (to connect the 2 arm straps)

Step 4 – Tighten the back straps

- Now that everything is in place, you can start tightening the 2 adjustment straps on the side until you achieve the most desired and comfortable position.

Enjoy! The Yokohama carrier you are holding on your hands right now is extremely secure and much more comfortable than most major brands on the market. We have done intensive research, studied other brands and thoroughly tested with hundreds of babies from different ethnics under the strictest conditions. We hope you will enjoy it as much as we do while making it.
